

Telomere Superior Formula

The new way of healthy aging

Dietary Supplement

Sirtuins and aging processes

Sirtuins are a group of enzymes, which support cellular regeneration and therefore are involved in the human aging process. They are closely involved in the functions of the vitamin niacin, which improves energy yield in the mitochondria, the cellular "power house", and thus is involved in the normal energy metabolism of the body. Science is aware of some plants involved in the activation of sirtuins; typical examples are turmeric, green tea or even broccoli. Plant substances such as resveratrol, pterostilbenes or the bioflavonoid quercetin are also closely connected to the activity of sirtuins. Biogena Telomere Superior Formula combines these bioactive plant substances and other active substances in a newly developed micronutrient preparation and supports the cellular energy yield and cell integrity with the vitamin niacin.

Telomere Superior Formula

- Potent combination to support healthy aging and maintain youthful energy
- With niacin, which is required for the activity of sirtuins, improves energy yield in the mitochondria, and thus is involved in normal energy metabolism
- With resveratrol and pterostilbene to maintain youthful gene expression and cellular energy production
- With a combination of potent antioxidative plant extracts that protect mitochondria from free radicals, which contribute to cellular aging
