Dietary Supplement

Proteolytic enzymes for systemic uptake

Enzymes have a broad spectrum of activity in the body. In particular the protein-splitting (proteolytic) enzymes such as bromelain from pineapple, papain from papaya, or the digestive enzyme trypsin are used systemically. Enzymes in concentrated form can be absorbed from the digestive tract into the body, where they can modulate various metabolic processes.**

Enzyme System Formula GOLD – what is it?

Biogena Enzyme System Formula GOLD contains the four proteolytic enzymes bromelain, papain, trypsin and chymotrypsin. Bromelain and papain are obtained exclusively from vegetable sources – while papain is contained in particularly high concentrations in the skin of the green papaya, bromelain is mainly found in pineapples. Biogena Enzyme System Formula GOLD contains not only vegetable bromelain and papain but also the important enzymes trypsin and chymotrypsin. In addition, natural bioflavonoids such as quercetin and citrus bioflavonoids as well as grape seed extract supplement the sophisticated enzyme complex. The combination of special ingredients contained in Biogena Enzyme System Formula GOLD thus represents a sensible supplement to the daily diet.
